A New Furniture Store Opened on Washington Street.

The Rhodes-Burford Company, which leased the three-story building at 129 East Washington street, extending to Virginia avenue, for a furniture store, formally opened its business to the public yesterday. The three floors, containing 35,000 square feet, were packed closely with new stock, and the whole building was attracdecorated with flowers and palms. building was crowded throughout the day, and Manager L. F. Hurt said the at-tendance was beyond all expectations. The firm has a large number of stores in the Inited States, most of which are in the ath, and for two years the matter of locating here has been under consideration. t was not until about three months ago that a suitable location was found, and the liding was leased for a number of years, fembers of the firm say they have reselved much encouragement in their venure here. They have now three stores in this State, the others being at Jeffersonville and New Albany. Yesterday each visitor who got to the top of the building was given a souvenir. These were pretty floral pictures, which were eagerly sought. Fifteen thousand of them had been provided, but the supply was exnausted before the closing at 11 o'clock last night. Last night the newspaper men of the city were royally entertained by the Rhodes-Burford Company.

MR. OVERSTREET AT HOME.

Returns from Europe After a Five

Months' Trip. Representative Overstreet arrived in the city yesterday, fresh from his European tour of five months, but only remained here a few hours, going to Franklin to spend Sunday with his father. Mrs. Overstreet is with her parents at Columbus. The two will come to Indianapolis early this week and take their former apartments in the Denison Hotel. Mr. Overstreet does not take much stock in the idea that European countries will form a "trade alliance" against the United States. He says every where he went he found the people of the ntinent eager to secure American goods He declares that a trade alliance would simply be a case of "cutting off one's nose to spite one's face," since such an alliance would deprive the people of products which they desire. "I do not think it would be possible for them to perfect an alliance gainst our country so long as the present treaty relations exist," he said. Mr. and Mrs. Overstreet visited southern Spain and, although they were told they would receive hostile treatment there, they found themselves well treated.

The books which Mr. Fanning now has in his possession contain the names of between seven and eight hundred Democrats, and from reliable authority it is learned that each one of them has been marked for slaughter on Monday. The scheme is to challenge each voter whose name appears in the books on the ground that he did not support Taggart at the last city election. The law provides that any person shall be entitled to vote providing that "at the last preceding election he affiliated with the party holding such election; that he voted for the regular nominees of such party at such election, and that he intends to support and vote for the regular nominees of such party at the coming election.

Mr. Moore said that he would carry every ward on the South Side and had hopes that he would carry the Fourth, Fifth and Seventh wards on the North Side. When asked if he thought he would be given fair treatment Mr. Moore declined to make any statement, but a victed in June, 1883, also by the judge that number of his ardent supporters who were present did not hesitate to say that an attempt would be made to defraud Moore if the opportunity was offered.

"Every move that the machine makes," said one of the Moore managers, "indicates that they intend to rob Mr. Moore if he is nominated." When pressed to explain his statement he declined to say what he meant, but from another source it was learned that Chairman Fanning had positively declined to allow Moore to name his watchers at the primaries. Just when Mr. Fanning arrived at this conclusion is not known, but it is certain that Moore called upon him at the city headquarters yesterday afternoon and accused him of trying to rob him in the approaching primaries. He told Fanning that he had openly opposed him ever since he had announced his candidacy, and that under the circumstances he would insist on his right to appoint his own watchers. It is said that Fanning remained obdurate, and boldly informed Mr. Moore that he would appoint the watchers himself. When Mr. Moore was asked about his interview with Fanning last night he declined to affirm the above account, but another Democrat said was absolutely true. "The fact that Mr. Fanning insists upon appointing the watchers," said he, "confirms our suspicion that the figures are to be manipulated if it becomes necessary." Another Democrat present said that it was highly probable that Moore would be counted out. "They counted Bookwalter out two years ago," said he, and they could do it much easier with Moore. But I want to say one thing, that if they attempt any of their trickery this time they won't get off as easy as they did with Mr. Bookwalter. I happen to be in a position to know just how some of that work was done two years ago, and if it happens again I will expose their trickery of two years ago, and give the names of the

It was said by some of the saloon keepers on the principal down-town streets last night that they had never before had such a poor Saturday night's trade. Maguire's enchmen paid a last visit to the Souti Side wards, and Moore's followers were equally busy on the North Side. On the South Side there were very few of the precincts where beer was not given away by the barrel. Probably there was more given away in the Sixth, however, than in any other ward in the city. It was Charley Polster's busy night. A specia attempt was made to corral the colored voters at 510 North California street. Invitations were sent out during the day and none but the colored voters were invited. Just how many responded to the invitations is not known, as the party was given behind closed doors, but a negro who was present said afterward that there hadn't been a "push" any time during the even-ing. On Aug. 15 Harry Alting, a pressman, because of failure to perform his work properly and the use of abusive language when his attention was called to the fact, was discharged. The claim is made that he at that time threatened to cause all of the employes in the plant to go on strike and to demolish the buildings and machinery. Since that time he has received the assistance of a large number of other employes as well as members of labor unions. So active have been the strikers because Aiting and other striking employes were not reinstated upon their own terms rather than what the company saw fit to offer citizens, customers, employes who have kept at work and members of their families are in danger of personal vio-Close pickets have been established by the strikers and numerous threats have been made. It is also claimed by the company that the work in one department when topped will cause other departments to become idle, and that unless protection is secured other employes cannot be secured, and that many now working will stop because of fear.

Aside from these are a few "independents" who preach doctrines of their own at such times as the street is not occupied by other competitors. Up till last night the various street speakers managed to keep out of each others' way. Once or twice two meetings have been held at the same hour, but the crowds that congregated were far enough apart to not detract interest one from the other, Last night, however, a Socialist behind prison bars influenced Governor Labor party orator and the Pentecost Band took up positions exactly across the street from each other and at the same hour. The contest between the two was interesting to those not a part of either of the crowds that congregated, and the voices of the speakers were blended until nothing was distinguishable. The shouting of the Socialist as he cried down trades unions mingled with the prayers and testimony of the members of the little religious band. The Socialist had to talk against the whole Pentecost band, for each member of the religious sect exercised his or her lung power to its fullest capacity as they one by one testified. However, the Socialist talked on and on without noticing the competition, and he still seemed good for another hour when the Pentecost band marched off the street. M'COY ACCUSED OF THEFT.
